

Printed from

THE TIMES OF INDIA

Vet varsity invites applications for CM Awards

TNN | Jul 19, 2024, 04.46 AM IST

Ludhiana: Guru Angad Dev Veterinary and Animal Sciences University has invited applications for Chief Minister's Awards from farmers. The awards will be conferred to farmers for value addition in the field of livestock farming. The winner of the award will get a cash prize of Rs 11,000 to Rs 21,000.

The award will be presented during the Pashu Palan Mela of the vet varsity on Sept 13 and 14. An official said the directorate of extension education is inviting applications till Aug 12. Director of extension education, Dr Parkash Singh Brar, said the university confers Chief Minister Awards in seven categories, including cattle, buffalo, goat, pig, poultry, and fish farming and value addition of livestock produce. These awards have been funded by the CM to boost the livestock sector in the state and will consist of a cash prize and a citation. This year, the awards will be given in three categories: cattle farming, poultry farming and value addition of livestock produce. tnn